Broken ballot scanners caused havoc at NYC polling locations

Don't leave without voting, officials said, as voters were forced to wait to cast their ballots.

Some New Yorkers heading to the polls on Tuesday had to deal with extra wait times due to broken ballot scanners, but city officials urged residents to stay in line to cast their ballots in the midterms.

New York City Council Speaker Corey Johnson said online that he was "disappointed" to hear of broken ballot scanners at various New York City polling locations and that New York City Board of Elections Executive Director Michael J. Ryan should resign in the wake of the inconvenience.

"Voting should not be this difficult," Johnson tweeted. "[NYC Board of Elections] has had all year to prepare for this day. Bad weather and high turnout are no excuse when we have forecasts for both. Michael Ryan needs to resign and we need a full top-to-bottom review of what went wrong today."

This Election Day hiccup shows the need for Board of Elections reforms, he added, like early voting.

New York state does not allow early voting, which led to packed poll sites on Tuesday. Currently, 34 states plus the District of Columbia allow no-excuse early voting, and this year 33 million Americans nationwide cast their votes before Election Day.

Mayor Bill de Blasio confirmed he was aware of the broken scanners as well. On Twitter, he pleaded with residents dealing with the inconvenience to "please stay in line" and echoed the idea that early voting and other reforms could help prevent this mishap in the future.

This was the first time that New York City had a two-page ballot, Michael J. Ryan, the executive director of the New York City Board of Elections, told CBS NewYork, and that could have created an issue with the ballot scanners.

"We're not seeing a higher percentage, necessarily, of ballot jams, but in the aggregate, when you have higher turnout and you have more paper passing through the system, you're going to have some issues," he said.

Midterm elections don't usually see as high of a voter turnout as presidential years, but these midterms garnered extra attention across the country.

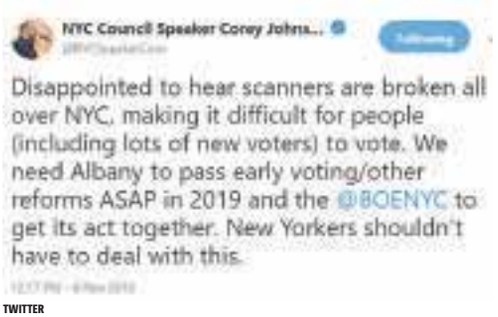
"This is a predictable problem. We MUST fix and plan for next time!"
Corey Johnson, NYC Council speaker

Ryan added that the rain "and people having wet clothing and perhaps ballots getting wet is contributing" to the broken machines. "The dryer, the crisper the ballot is, the less issues you're going to have with the machine," he added.

Johnson reiterated this point as well, saying that wet ballots caused by people waiting in line at their polling location in the rain were causing scanners to malfunction.

"This is a predictable problem," Johnson said on Twitter. "We MUST fix and plan for next time!"

Ryan told voters to stay calm if they were dealing with a broken ballot scanner and assured them that technicians would be fixing machines at various New York City polling locations.



NYC Council Speaker Corey Johns...
Disappointed to hear scanners are broken all over NYC, making it difficult for people (including lots of new voters) to vote. We need Albany to pass early voting/other reforms ASAP in 2019 and the @BOENYC to get its act together. New Yorkers shouldn't have to deal with this.

TWITTER

If you do get stuck waiting due to a broken machine, don't leave your New York City polling location without officially casting your ballot, officials said.

New York Attorney General Barbara Underwood's office was monitoring an Election Day hotline on Tuesday that any New Yorker could call if they experienced issues at the polls.

The hotline received plenty of calls about broken scanners, Underwood confirmed on Twitter.

"Every eligible voter has the right to cast a ballot — including an emergency ballot if needed," she added. "Do not feel pressured to leave your poll site before you vote, and call us with any issues."

New York Dems win big in Tuesday's midterms

Andrew Cuomo was easily elected to his third term as governor while Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez became the youngest woman elected to Congress.

New York state made history of its own during the midterm elections on Tuesday — and we're not talking about the influx of malfunctioning ballot scanners and record turnout.

Less than two minutes after polls closed at 9 p.m., The Associated Press declared incumbent Democratic Gov. Andrew Cuomo as winning a third term by easily defeating Republican challenger and Dutchess County Executive Marc Molinaro.

"I will work every day to vindicate the confidence the people of New York have given to me," a joyous Cuomo said in his victory speech. "Together we're going to do even more. We all win bigger when we work together."

Incumbent Democratic Lt. Gov. Kathy Hochul defeated challenger Julie Killian, a former deputy mayor of Rye, New York, and her challenger for lieutenant governor.

New York City Public Advocate Letitia "Tish" James, who took an early lead over Manhattan lawyer Keith Wofford in the midterm election, was projected to notch another historic win by being elected as the state's first black attorney general.

James first made history by becoming the first black woman to win a citywide election when she was elected to public advocate in 2013 and again in September when she defeated her Democratic challengers in the primary.

A special election for James' vacant public advocate seat will take place within a few weeks of her Jan. 1 swearing-in.

Though all 27 House of Representatives seats were on the ballot, eyes have been on New York's 14th Congressional District because of Democratic-Socialist Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, who defeated 14-year incumbent Joe Crowley in the primary.

The Bronx native, who now represents parts of that borough and Queens, took a commanding lead over her Republican challenger, St. John's economics and finance professor Anthony Pappas, becoming the youngest woman elected to Congress.

When Ocasio-Cortez defeated 14-year incumbent Joe Crowley in the Democratic primary in September, it was considered the "stunning upset" of the 2018 midterm election season as Crowley was the fourth-highest ranking Democrat in the House.

While this was her first run for office, Ocasio-Cortez's previous experience in the political arena included organizing for Vermont Sen. Bernie Sanders' presidential run in 2016. She also worked for late Democratic Sen. Ted Kennedy while attending Boston University, where she earned degrees in economics and international relations.

Additionally, Ocasio-Cortez worked as an educational director with the National Hispanic Institute and headed initiatives for improving childhood literacy and writing in the Bronx.

At 29, Ocasio-Cortez is the youngest woman to be elected to Congress.

In the 11th Congressional District, Democrat Max Rose, another political newcomer, ousted Republican Dan Donovan, AP declared.

The upset came despite a last-ditch effort by President Trump to keep the only Republican congressman in his hometown. Trump recorded a taped message sent out to 55,000 New Yorkers urging them to vote for Donovan, the New York Post reported. The seat represents all of Staten Island and some of southwest Brooklyn.

The Powerful (and little known) Back Pain Treatment Used By Smart New Yorkers Who Don't Want Back Surgery or Opioid Drugs

NEW YORK CITY - A major back pain relief opportunity is at hand. But if you are interested, you must act quickly.

Here is why: Back pain ruins lives... and puzzles doctors.

You go through so many exams and tests... and treatments... and only end up suffering and frustrated.

And everyone is quick to say they have the "new breakthrough solution."

Am I right?

Well, the fact of the matter is... treating back pain is difficult. But advances in modern medical science and technology have created a treatment that has gotten great results with countless back pain sufferers who had tried everything else. Many had given up hope.

This treatment is called: "Radiofrequncy Neurotomy." RF for s short. And here's how is works...

RF is a procedure that is based on the theory that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

There are many nerves around your back or neck and one of their jobs is to sense PAIN.

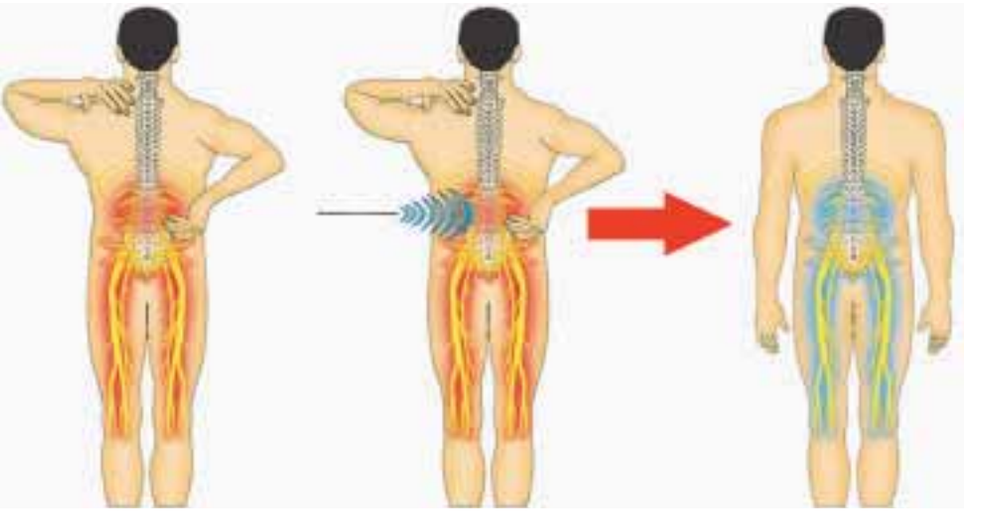
Radiofreqeuncy waves are delivered to these nerves under advanced precision medical imaging to target the damaged areas... done right in their own clinic without intimidating, expensive hospitals or surgical centers ... to "block" the painful nerve flow.

Two steps in the formula are performed. First, a test or diagnostic "Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function. If this first "test" procedure is successful, RF Neurotomy or "Radiofrequency" will be performed for longer term relief.

NOT just the Treatment alone that's the key ingredient.

You see, the real secret is the formula. And that again starts with a proper screening evaluation to determine if you are a good candidate and may achieve the results you are looking forward to. This is always Step number one.

And the best part about this screening is… It's FREE



FREE screening available for powerful back pain treatment

This screening will give you so much relief just knowing what is going on… and what your best options are.

That's right. NYC Pain MD offers this first step screening at no cost to patients The only problem is… they often get over 100 inquiries a day as they also treat almost every painful area and joint. Sometimes its hard to get through. If you don't get through to someone when you call… keep calling… or leave a message... it will be well worth it.

But that's just the first step

After your free screening, if you qualify, the doctors will discuss the best treatment plan for you in a way that you will understand completely. Not all complex "doctor talk"...

This may be one… or a combination of the advanced medical treatments offered at NYC Pain MD.

Everything will be explained and all your questions will be answered. And even better:

You will be given all this At NO COST. NYC Pain MD doc's are not like used car salesman. They will not be giving you a sales pitch. They are doctors and will give you the best possible options to help your pain and offer to help you the best way they can. In fact, with up to 100 inquiries a day from patient's looking for relief, it's often hard to even get a treatment spot.

You should also know this: While NYC Pain MD cannot help everyone… so many have gotten the pain relief they were looking for.

One of the reasons they offer those first step free screenings, is because it has opened the door to so many people to get help that they never would have otherwise.

At the very least, you will finally have some direction and a plan. And... whether you have the best, worst or no insurance at all, NYC Pain MD programs can be made affordable to everyone

They do not want insurance issues… or not being rich or famous… to keep you away if you are suffering in pain.

How To Schedule Your Risk-Free No-Obligation Screening Evaluation

There is a whole lot more I could say about their treatments etc… but this space is limited and that's best left for you and the doctors to discuss in person.

So… if you are even remotely interested … take the a first step and give them a call at 877-245-9252 and ask for your free screening.

One more thing... We often get over 100 calls in a single day. For that reason, if when you call you do not get a live scheduling coordinator, make sure to leave your name, number and time of your call on our voicemail. They will get back to you as soon as possible. Again, the number to call is 877-245-9252. More info at: painmdny.com/back-pain

Minnesota, Michigan send first Muslim women to US Congress

Ilhan Omar and Rashida Tlaib made history in Tuesday's midterms.

Voters in Minnesota and Michigan on Tuesday elected the first two Muslim women to serve in the U.S. Congress, a former refugee who fled Somalia's civil war and a Detroit-born Palestinian-American.

The victories by the two Democrats — Ilhan Omar and Rashida Tlaib — came on an election night when members of multiple minority groups had a chance to score electoral firsts.

In Minnesota, Omar, 36, and a naturalized American citizen and state representative, follows another trailblazer: She will succeed U.S. Congressman Keith Ellison, who in 2006 became the first Muslim elected to Congress and is stepping down to run for state attorney general.

The Minneapolis woman campaigned on policies embraced by the Democratic Party's most liberal wing: universal health care, free college tuition and robust public housing.

"I did not expect to come to the United States and go to school with kids who were worried about food as much as I was worried about it in a refugee camp," Omar said in an interview last month. She spent four years of her childhood in a refugee camp in Kenya.

Two years ago, she became the first Somali-American to win a seat in a state legislature, on the same night Republican Donald Trump won the presidency after a campaign in which he called for a ban on all Muslims entering the United States.

Omar will also be the first Congress member to wear a Muslim hijab, or head scarf.

Tlaib, 42, also has a history of breaking barriers: In 2008 she became the first Muslim woman elected to the Michigan Legislature.

The oldest of 14 children, Tlaib was born to a family of Palestinian immigrants in Detroit, where her father worked at a Ford Motor Co. plant.

The former state representative also ran on a liberal platform, backing Medicare for All, immigration reform and a call to overturn Trump's executive order banning most people from five Muslim-majority nations from entering the United States.

Both women ran in heavily Democratic districts. Minnesota state data showed Omar winning by a large margin, and Michigan media reported that Tlaib had won.

> "Today, women across the country are on the ballot. Yes, we marched outside the Capitol, but now we get to march into the Capitol."
> Rashida Tlaib

Tlaib linked her campaign to the surge of female political activism in the United States following Trump's stunning 2016 victory, alluding to the millions of women that took to the streets of Washington and major cities across the country after his inauguration.

"Today, women across the country are on the ballot. Yes, we marched outside the Capitol, but now we get to march into the Capitol," she wrote on Twitter on Tuesday. "We are coming!" REUTERS

The Medical Director of urology is David Shusterman, MD. Dr. Shusterman is a board certified urologist who specializes in state of the art compassionate kidney stone treatment.

Safe, effective ways to treat kidney stones

Anyone who has ever suffered from kidney stones knows just how painful it can be. It's little wonder that more than half a million people go to the emergency room for kidney stone problems every year, according to the National Kidney Foundation.

So what are kidney stones? They're essentially hard mineral deposits that form inside the kidneys. When the fluid in urine is unable to break them down, they'll pass through the ureter and bladder—which is generally a painful process. There's a wealth of anecdotal reports likening kidney stone pain to that of childbirth. The truth is that no two cases are alike, but early diagnosis is critical when it comes to getting ahead of it. Many times, this comes down to understanding the specific risk factors that might make you more likely to develop kidney stones. Family history, frequent dehydration, certain dietary issues, and obesity are all on the list. Board Certified Urologist Dr. David Shusterman of NY Urology takes a proactive approach. Thanks to a mix of preventative medicine and some simple lifestyle changes, you may be able to prevent kidney stones before they ever develop.

If a kidney stone is already in motion, Dr. Shusterman's expert team can quickly identify it using ultrasound imaging, then get things moving with innovative treatment options that have made NY Urology a nationally recognized leader in the field. He leads with holistic medicine with the goal being to break down kidney stones so that they can pass as naturally and easily as possible. NY Urology provides a cutting-edge, noninvasive treatment called extracorporeal shock wave lithotripsy (ESWL), which relies on sound waves to break apart the stones via focused vibrations. The in-office procedure is completely safe, and recovery is typically pretty swift.

Another option is placing something called a nephrostomy tube into the kidneys. This plastic catheter essentially lets urine drain directly from the kidneys during the treatment process. The result is near-immediate pain relief because you're eliminating backed-up urine and helping things flow more easily. A ureteral stent works in much the same way, bolstering the body's ability to drain urine and, in turn, safely encouraging the natural healing process. The soft plastic stent is temporarily placed directly into the ureter to help urine flow more freely. When ureters are blocked up by kidney stones, pain and discomfort are on the horizon. Stents open these passages.

When all else fails, NY Urology also specializes in minimally invasive surgery using a device called a ureteroscopy to eliminate painful, stubborn kidney stones. Making its way through the urethra and bladder, and into the ureter, the device zeros in on the kidney stone and swiftly removes it. The best part is that it's a fairly straightforward outpatient procedure that requires no incisions. In extreme situations where the stone is too large to remove with a ureteroscopy, Dr. Shusterman may call on a more in-depth procedure that involves a small incision in the back. The upside here is that the success rate is high, helping patients safely get rid of large kidney stones in one fell swoop.

Whether you're looking to prevent kidney stones or address one that's already wreaking havoc, NY Urology is your best resource. Book an appointment today with Dr. Shusterman, located at 800 Second Avenue on the corner of 42nd Street. Call (212) 991-9991 and start mapping out a plan for living a pain-free life without kidney stones.

Democrats gain in House races; news outlets project they will take control

Republicans, with a big victory by Texas Sen. Ted Cruz, are expected to hold on to the Senate.

Democrats picked up at least 10 Republican-held seats as they moved closer to winning control of the U.S. House of Representatives on Tuesday, but faced an uphill climb to wrest a majority from President Donald Trump's party in the U.S. Senate.

Fox News projected that Democrats would win control of the House, although it did not predict the margin of victory or elaborate on how it made the call.

Democrats needed to pick up 23 seats to capture the House after a contentious campaign season, enabling them to slam the brakes on Trump's agenda and exercise renewed oversight of his administration.

The first national elections since Trump captured the White House in a 2016 upset became a referendum on the polarizing president, and a test of whether Democrats can turn the energy of the liberal anti-Trump resistance into victories at the ballot box.

Many of the races that will decide the balance of power in Congress and shape the future of Trump's presidency were still too close to call at press time, including dozens of vital battleground districts.

In the Senate, where Republicans were heavily favored to keep control heading into Tuesday's voting, Republican Mike Braun captured incumbent Joe Donnelly's seat in Indiana. In North Dakota, Republican Kevin Cramer beat incumbent Democratic Sen. Heidi Heitkamp.

That then meant Democrats, who needed to gain two Republican Senate seats to win control, needed to pick up four.

In the House, Democrat Jennifer Wexton ousted incumbent Republican Barbara Comstock in suburban Virginia, and Florida Democrat Donna Shalala, a former Cabinet secretary under President Bill Clinton, captured the seat of a retired Republican.

Democrat Mary Gay Scanlon won a Republican-held seat in Pennsylvania, while Democrat Jason Crow won a Republican-held House seat in Colorado.

There were competitive Senate races still too close to call in Florida.

Republican U.S. Senator Ted Cruz of Texas held off an election challenge on Tuesday by Democratic U.S. Representative Beto O'Rourke, keeping his seat in the upper chamber of Congress, according to media projections.

Incumbent Democratic Sen. Joe Manchin won a hotly contested race in conservative West Virginia, and Marsha Blackburn held a Senate seat for Republicans.

Sens. Bernie Sanders of Vermont, a 2016 Democratic presidential contender, and Tim Kaine of Virginia, Hillary Clinton's vice presidential nominee in 2016, easily won re-election, news networks projected. Democratic Sen. Sherrod Brown was projected to hold his seat in Ohio.

High-profile races for governor in Georgia, Florida and Ohio also were too close to call.

The Democrats were favored by election forecasters to pick up the 23 seats in the House, but opinion polls showed they had slimmer hopes in the Senate. All 435 seats in the House, 35 seats in the 100-member Senate and 36 of the 50 state governorships were up for grabs.

The volatile midterm campaign was marked by clashes over race, immigration and trade. In the final stretch, Trump hardened his rhetoric on issues that appealed to his conservative core supporters, issuing warnings about a caravan of Latin American migrants headed to the border with Mexico and condemnations of what he called U.S. liberal "mobs."

Many Democrats, already benefiting from anti-Trump enthusiasm, focused on bread-and-butter issues like maintaining health insurance protections for people with pre-existing medical conditions and safeguarding the Social Security retirement and Medicare health care programs for the elderly.

If Democrats capture the House, they could launch congressional investigations into Trump's administration, including his tax returns, possible business conflicts of interest and the nature of his 2016 campaign's ties to Russia.

A Republican victory in both chambers of Congress would be a validation for Trump's polarizing style, a month after he solidified a conservative majority on the Supreme Court when the Senate confirmed his nominee Brett Kavanaugh after a fight over sexual misconduct accusations against the jurist.

Striking a dark tone at a rally in Indiana on Monday evening, Trump accused Democrats without offering any evidence of "openly encouraging millions of illegal aliens to break our laws, violate our borders and overrun our country."

Ahead of the results, U.S. stocks closed higher, with the benchmark S&P 500 Index ending the day at a two-week high. U.S. Treasury securities prices fell, and the 10-year yield closed at its highest level since 2011. The dollar was unchanged.

Problems with voting machines prevented Americans from casting ballots in a dozen states, U.S. rights advocates said, following complaints about registration problems, faulty equipment and intimidation received during early balloting.

A U.S. Department of Homeland Security official said the reports of voting technology failures appeared so far to have had no significant impact in preventing people from voting.

Voter turnout, normally lower when the presidency is not at stake, could be the highest for a midterm election in 50 years, experts predicted. About 40 million early votes were likely cast, said Michael McDonald, a professor at the University of Florida who tracks the figures. In the last such congressional elections in 2014, there were 27.5 million early votes.

At least 64 House races were considered competitive, according to a Reuters analysis of the three top nonpartisan forecasters, and Senate control was expected to come down to a half-dozen close contests in Arizona, Nevada, Missouri, North Dakota and Florida.

In his time in office, Trump has pushed tax cuts through Congress and overseen a period of economic and jobs growth but has failed so far to deliver on presidential campaign promises to replace the Obamacare health care law and build a wall on the Mexican border that he has said is needed to battle illegal immigration. More than a dozen states report trouble with voting machines on Election Day

Voters across the U.S. struggled at the polls to cast their vote.

More than a dozen states across the United States struggled at the polls on Election Day due to faulty or broken voting machines, registration issues and voter intimidation, U.S. rights advocates reported to Reuters.

By noon, at least 12 states reported issues with machines that caused chaos for voters in those states attempting to cast their ballots. However, according to Homeland Security, few incidents have been reported to the agency.

The complaints were reported to a national hotline set up by an "election protection" coalition consisting of more than 100 groups on the lookout for reported voter irregularities.

Investigators in Georgia were called to unnamed poll locations to look into digital poll books, state spokeswoman Candice Broce said. Due to unspecified issues, some voters in the state voted using provisional ballots rather than machines. It was unclear if the change was due to faulty machines. According to rights groups, provisional ballots can cause voting issues because they are seen as less reliable than regular ballots. Provisional ballots add an extra step because they require information about voters to be verified prior to votes being counted.

"I was determined I was going to cast my ballot [Tuesday] because it's a very important election."

Shirley Thorn, postal employee

"We're fully prepared to mount emergency litigation to push back against some of the systemic problems that sometimes rear their heads in our elections," said Kristen Clarke, head of the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, which leads the election protection coalition.

While it was a frustrating Election Day for some voters, many endured to make sure their vote would be counted.

Postal employee Shirley Thorn waited at the polls in Snellville, Georgia, for four hours due to technical issues.

"I was determined I was going to cast my ballot [Tuesday] because it's a very important election," Thorn said. REUTERS

Long Island City among finalists for Amazon HQ2

Amazon HQ2 will be split between two cities, and among the finalists are Long Island City, Dallas and Arlington, Virginia.

GETTY IMAGES

Amazon is planning to split its second headquarters evenly between two cities, people familiar with the matter said Monday, in a twist to a more than year-long contest that has drawn overtures from locales across North America.

Long Island City, Dallas, and Arlington, Virginia, near Washington, D.C., are among the finalists with which Amazon is holding advanced talks, one of the people said on condition of anonymity. The person would not confirm which two are expected to win or if any others remain in the running.

Amazon declined to comment on the news, first reported by The Wall Street Journal.

The world's largest online retailer sparked a bidding frenzy in September 2017 when it announced it would invest more than $5 billion to create an "HQ2" in addition to its home base in Seattle and hire up to 50,000 people.

One of the major reasons for the decision was for Amazon, which has satellite operations around the world, to recruit top talent. Offering a choice of head offices could help it win new workers in a battle with Alphabet Inc.'s Google and others, with which Amazon competes in areas such as cloud computing and voice-controlled technology.

"Amazon is going where it won't have to jostle with Google and Facebook as much as it would in San Francisco or it does in Seattle," said Alex Snyder, analyst at CenterSquare Investment Management near Philadelphia.

On Monday, New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo said the state was in talks with Amazon. "We have a great incentive package," which was not "crazy" like other states' offers, he said, according to audio from WCBS 880 Radio.

"I'll change my name to Amazon Cuomo if that's what it takes," he said.

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

"Don't Get ANY Surgery Until You SeeThis…"

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best "Treatment Formula" For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going is be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD "Treatment Formula" A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW....

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these "gel injections" without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patent. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our "Treatment Formula."

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what's going on and what is your best course of action… step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what's going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I'm out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Port Authority bomber found guilty on all counts

A jury on Tuesday found Akayed Ullah guilty of carrying out an attempted terror attack in 2017.

MORGAN ROUSSEAU
morgan@metro.us

HANDOUT

Port Authority bomber Akayed Ullah was found guilty Tuesday on all counts of trying to blow himself up in a failed terror attack at one of New York City's busiest commuter hubs.

Akayed Ullah, a 28-year-old Bangladeshi Brooklynite, now faces up to life in prison for the December 2017 Port Authority bombing. Prosecutors in Manhattan federal court said Ullah is an ISIS sympathizer who attempted to blow himself up in a passageway to the Port Authority in an attempt to "inflict maximum damage" to New York City commuters on Dec. 11, 2017.

Ullah's defense, however, claims he is a troubled man who wanted only to take his own life, and Ullah's bomb was an attempted suicide.

No one was killed in the bombing that day, though surveillance video showed the bomb detonating within feet of Port Authority commuters.

Ullah was charged with six criminal counts, which include using a weapon of mass destruction and providing material support to Islamic State.

Defense attorney Julia Gatto's statement came after Assistant U.S. Attorney Rebekah Donaleski laid out the prosecutors' case, telling the jury that Ullah's act was inspired by Islamic State propaganda he found online.

Donaleski said Ullah built a bomb out of a pipe taken from a construction site where he worked as an electrician, using match heads and sugar as explosives and screws as shrapnel.

"The defendant was inspired by ISIS," Donaleski said, using the Islamic State acronym. She said a search of Ullah's computer revealed that he had viewed propaganda urging supporters unable to travel to join Islamic State to carry out "lone wolf" attacks wherever they live.

Donaleski told the jury that, while on his way to carry out the attack, Ullah posted on Facebook: "Trump you failed to protect your nation," followed by an Arabic message that she said expressed support of Islamic State.

Gatto countered that the prosecutors "give far too much credit to an organization that deserves none."

NYPD Commissioner James O'Neill tweeted it was fitting Ullah's guilty verdict came down on Election Day.

"It's fitting that on #ElectionDay in America, Akayed Ullah — who detonated a bomb in a pedestrian tunnel beneath #NYC — was unanimously found guilty by a jury of New Yorkers. We are vigilant," O'Neill tweeted Tuesday afternoon, adding that New Yorkers will not be deterred by acts of terrorism.

Pipe bomb suspect held without bail

Sayoc is accused of mailing 16 explosive devices.

SARAH LUOMA
letters@metro.us

GETTY IMAGES

Pipe bomb suspect Cesar Sayoc made his first court appearance on Tuesday in Manhattan, where it was announced he will be held without bail.

U.S. Magistrate Judge Robert Lehrburger announced his decision after deeming Sayoc a flight risk as well as a danger to the public.

The 56-year-old, who was arrested on Oct. 26 in Florida, stood in court without shackles next to his public defender, Sarah Jane Baumgartel.

Sayoc is being charged with interstate transportation of an explosive, illegal mailing of explosives, threats against former presidents and other persons, threatening interstate communications and assaulting current and former federal officers.

He is accused of mailing 16 pipe bombs to political figures such as former President Barack Obama, as well as CNN. The last pipe bomb, mailed to Democrat and hedge fund manager Thomas Steyer, was discovered on Friday.

"The defendant used mailing materials nearly identical to the other 15 packages, including the same type of envelope, address format, and stamps," the prosecutors' letter read.

No one was injured in all 16 mailings as none of the pipe bombs were successfully detonated.

Prior to Sayoc's appearance in court, the suspect's estranged mother wrote a letter to ABC, explaining that her son suffers from a mental illness. In the open letter she detailed her attempts to get Sayoc help and urged for stricter laws that would "compel and require" treatment for those suffering from mental illness.

"While I have not lived with my son for 35 years or even heard from him in over four years, I cannot express how deeply hurt, sad, shocked and confused I am to hear that my son may have caused so many people to be put in fear for their safety," Madeline Sayoc wrote. "This is not how I raised him or my children."

Sayoc's preliminary hearing is set for Monday.

READER WRITE-INS:

A TUMBLE ON THE FERRY

I literally write most of my grumbles while riding the subway, since that's where most of my inspiration has come from. This time I'm writing on the ferry. I don't take the ferry often, but when I do, I savor the peaceful ride and the alluring scenery. I enjoy viewing the city skyline and the Statue of Liberty. Unfortunately, on a recent ferry ride I had a "tumble"(on the Staten Island side). I tripped over a cable that runs across the sidewalk. Guess who helped me back up and onto my feet? Not the ferry workers who were standing right there! Three bystanders — two males and one female. It took me a while to get back up, but they stayed with me and gave me a helping hand. One of them even walked with me all the way onto the ferry to make sure I was OK. What did the ferry workers do that were on duty? Nothing, they just stared and didn't even ask if I was OK or thank the people who helped me. My knees are still bruised, cut and sore (yes, my pants ripped at the knees), but my enjoyment of the ferry still abides. I hope this doesn't happen to anyone else. If it does, I hope the ferry personnel will lend a helping hand to a passenger in need.

'Patriot' star Terry O'Quinn is sometimes 'shocked' by what makes him laugh

The "Lost" veteran talks about taking on a more darkly comedic role.

ANDREW HUSBAND
letters@metro.us

"Patriot" returns for another season.
ALL PHOTOS AMAZON STUDIOS

Toward the end of the first season of "Patriot," the hilariously morbid series from Steve Conrad, intelligence officer John Tavner (Michael Dorman) botches his covert operation in Milwaukee for a variety of silly reasons. One of the more significant ones, at least in the eyes of his boss and father Tom Tavner (Terry O'Quinn), is "doobies."

"That's what started all of this," he chastises the increasingly depressed John while driving late at night. "Because you were smoking on the weed."

It's one of many equally ludicrous scenes from the second season, which debuts this week on Amazon. Metro spoke to O'Quinn, best known for his performance as John Locke in "Lost," ahead of Friday's premiere.

Was this your first big experience with a more comedic role?

It was the first experience that was, as you would say, "comedic," although that's not how any of us approached it. I think the way it's written is kind of brilliant because you don't ever do anything in an effort to be funny. You simply play it as straight as you can. I think the situations that Steve creates are darkly funny. Sometimes, I think you're a little shocked at what you're laughing at. I think it's bizarre. I've talked to a few people who are involved in intelligence and those operations don't always go smoothly, and sometimes it's almost funny because of it. If life or death weren't involved, it could be perceived as funny. So we can sit at a distance and laugh at these things, but it reality these aren't necessarily the nicest people in the world.

"Patriot" is back on Amazon for season 2 on Friday.

What was your first impression of your character, Tom?

My first impression was that he was the director of intelligence for some unnamed American government arm or agency. Steve told me the bare facts, and even when I read it, it didn't strike me as all that funny. That' just something about his work and the way he operates. It often has to do with the way this thing is shot, which is pretty remarkable. Sometimes the shot itself is funny. How Jim Whitaker, the director of photography, and Steve decide to set up these shots is often funny, but without being self-consciously funny.

In many ways, it's a family dramedy within covert operations.

The familial aspect is a big part of Steve's make-up. In some of his work, family, redemption and being lost or saved play a huge role. These are themes that run through much of his work, and it's certainly evident in this. We haven't been saved yet, but let's hope we all get a chance to be, at least. Plus, Steve brought a great group of people together for this. He put a cast together that is happy, interactive, professional and a pleasure to work with. It's another one of his many gifts. I can quite honestly say that, if I could spend the rest of my career just working with these people on a project like this, I'd be perfectly satisfied.

Is this the kind of work you want to do more of?

I would absolutely like to do more work like this. As I said, I would like to keep doing this. If we could have another 10 seasons of this, I'd be pretty happy. I can probably settle down and put my feet up, but I would absolutely love to do more like this. It's so wonderfully written. I was at a writers conference recently, and anytime anyone asked me what I like most about a job, or at least what attracts me to a job, my first answer is always the writing. After that comes the part, the cast, the director and all of those other things. But my first answer is always the writing. The fact that Steve has written this so that it can be acted straight but funny is so unique. It's remarkable that I can sit there and go, "Wait a minute, I just laughed at somebody getting thrown in front of a bus."

Director David MacKenzie on the set of "Outlaw King." ALL PHOTOS NETFLIX

'Outlaw King"s director gets real about working with Netflix

David MacKenzie wants Chris Pine's Robert the Bruce to complicate the idea of heroism.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
Gregory.Wakeman@metro.us

"Outlaw King" director David MacKenzie thinks the battle between the theater and streaming sites like Netflix is bogus, and wants people to stop romanticizing the big screen.

"There is no competition," MacKenzie tells Metro. "Netflix are the key players at the moment in terms of allowing filmmakers to make films on a big scale with massive creative freedom and control."

"Outlaw King," which revolves around Robert the Bruce (Chris Pine) being crowned King of Scotland — only to then be forced into exile by the English, which is when he leads a band of outlaws to help him reclaim the throne — might have been better suited to a theatrical release. But, as the "Hell or High Water" director explained, Netflix was willing to give Mackenzie the creative control and backing he demanded in order to fulfill his vision for the film.

"The slightly false dichotomy of the big screen versus the small screen is a bogus argument, to be honest. There are a lot of films that are out on the big screen that people don't see on the big screen anyway," says MacKenzie. "I don't think it is what it once was in many ways. I would like to see a future of cinema where people like Netflix have their own cinema screens, theater chains or whatever, because they look after the viewer experience rather better than some of the chains that exist now."

Thanks to Netflix, MacKenzie's "Outlaw King" is a violent, brutal and authentic depiction of life and war in early 1300s Scotland, and the director insists it was always his intention to complicate cinema's idea of heroism, which has long been "codified and simplified."

"In the back of my mind I have always wanted to do a Scottish medieval movie, because I was aware that the version of medieval life I had seen was all a little bit anodyne, a little bit clean, a little bit heraldic and nice," says MacKenzie. "It all felt a little bit 'Princess Bride' kind of thing. That wasn't what that life was like. Robert the Bruce is a great and complex heroic character.

"I have made a lot of movies with antihero characters and I can't really bringing myself to do a straight hero thing. Robert was somebody who could do both. He has murdered someone in a church, he surrendered, he betrayed various people. It wasn't an easy ride for him on his hero's journey," he adds. "Cinema has codified and simplified this idea of heroism, and being able to explore a character who is regarded as a hero and is a complex one was something that was attractive to me for quite some time."

"Outlaw King" debuts Nov. 9 on Netflix.

All the masterpieces are here, from the Campbell's Soup Cans to a towering Chairman Mao. ALL PHOTOS EVA KIS

The prophet of art

The Whitney Museum's incredible retrospective on Andy Warhol reveals how the artist was ahead of his time — and is more relevant than ever.

EVA KIS
eva.kis@metro.us

The Andy Warhol quote everyone knows is the mantra of our viral video age: "In the future, everyone will be world-famous for 15 minutes." But it's another quote by the most famous American artist of the 20th century that starts off the Whitney Museum's in-depth retrospective of his entire career — before the Campbell's Soup Cans, and well after — that speaks to our cultural moment even more: "Everybody has their own America… And you live in your dream America that you've custom-made from art and schmaltz and emotions just as much as you live in your real one."

In fact, many of the staggering 300 works from over 100 lenders that make up "Andy Warhol: From A to Z and Back Again" seem prophetic to the point of doubting whether American culture has changed at all since Warhol's sudden death in 1987.

"The themes that preoccupied Warhol — mass media, celebrity culture, entertainment and politics — these shape our lives even more directly than they did during his lifetime, making his work not only more prescient but more relevant," says Adam Weinberg, director of the Whitney Museum.

"Through his work, Andy asks us to think about such questions as, 'What is history? What lasts? Who is a historical figure? When does news become history? When does news become fake?' This exhibition reappraises Warhol, who taught us to look at all matters including sex, death, fame, brutality, business, money, power and race without flinching. Not bad."

Living in Andy Warhol's America

For every person who loves Andy Warhol's art, you've got another who accuses him of merely piggybacking on other people's work. But a look at the most popular art of today — online memes — shows that knowing how to take an image and give it new context with digital editing or a caption is absolutely an art form.

"Many people have often thought Warhol didn't get his own ideas," says curator Donna De Salvo. "The power of Warhol's work really stems from this acute awareness of how images both live in the culture and how powerful they can be and how they need to be presented."

"From A to Z" gives you that chance, putting the single frame of Marilyn Monroe's Pop Art portrait in the context of the dozens of others that turn black-and-white and then fade off the canvas. Whether you see it as a commentary on the inevitable end of fame or how the Marilyn Monroe we

The full Marilyn Monroe portrait series tells a much deeper story.

"know" is a Hollywood construct rather than a real person, you'll never look at that portrait the same way again.

The exhibit is also a tour of Warhol's obsessions, giving a glimpse into the man he was rather than just the artist. Surely nowhere outside of China is there a portrait of Chairman Mao as large as the 14-foot canvas looming on the Whitney's fifth floor. There's also Jackie Onassis, her joy at riding alongside President Kennedy in his Dallas motorcade placed right next to her grief at his funeral. Violence was repugnant to Warhol, both in its racial disparity and the anonymity of violent car crashes swarmed by paparazzi. The Last Supper overset with camouflage pattern — a nod at his warring identities as both a Byzantine Catholic and a gay man?

What Andy Warhol would've thought of millennials

In many ways, Andy Warhol is typical of the millennial generation who came along just before his death in 1987.

"From A to Z" spans three floors of the Whitney, and visitors to the third floor are greeted by a video of Warhol sitting at a plain table and slowly unwrapping then eating a hamburger. Is this much different — though Warhol was likely being ironic — than posting an artful photo of that same hamburger on Instagram? And watching people eat is an entire YouTube genre that started in Asia but is well on its way to popularity in the U.S. He painted a whole series of trans women and looked into his own soul through Rorschach ink blots and contemplated mortality with gothic skulls.

As for made-for-selfie galleries? Warhol actually "announced" his exit from painting in 1966 with a two-room exhibition: one filled with silver balloons, another covered in cow wallpaper, "to imply that he had exhausted the possibilities of painting." Ouch. He'd likely be disappointed that we haven't managed to come up with something more creative.

Maybe, then, it's a third Andy Warhol quote that may inspire the next great movement in art, and even society: "They always say time changes things, but you actually have to change them yourself."

"Andy Warhol: From A to Z and Back Again" is open now to Whitney Museum members, and to the general public on Nov. 12.

The surviving cast of "The Brady Bunch" in front of their TV home. HGTV

'The Brady Bunch' go back to work on 'A Very Brady Renovation'

The original cast will reunite for this special event on HGTV.

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

Are there many other TV families quite as iconic as "The Brady Bunch"? Sure, you could argue that either the "The Simpsons" or even "The Conners" are on the same level at this point. But have any other fictionalized versions of the American family created the template as well as the Bradys for discussing the minute things family members address each other with on a daily basis? Sure, it may not have been as ugly or truthful as shows like "All in the Family" or "The Jeffersons." But that's neither here nor there.

Next year, the surviving cast of "The Brady Bunch" will reunite on HGTV for "A Very Brady Renovation." This will mark the first time in 15 years that the original cast will be together in that iconic house to take a walk down memory lane and make some much needed renovations alongside some of HGTV's most recognizable stars.

The show is destined to be one of the biggest shows in HGTV's history.

"What's so exciting about this project is that we are creating one of the most iconic homes from many of our viewers' childhoods," said Loren Ruch, senior vice president, HGTV programming and partnerships in a press release. "It will be the first time in history that the house from all of our memories will be created in a real brick-and-mortar location. It is certain to be a trip down memory lane."

All of the Brady siblings will return to the old house: Barry Williams (Greg), Maureen McCormick (Marcia), Christopher Knight (Peter), Eve Plumb (Jan), Mike Lookinland (Bobby) and Susan Olsen (Cindy). The Bradys will be paired with HGTV hosts Jonathan and Drew Scott ("Property Brothers"), Mina Starsiak and Karen E. Laine ("Good Bones"), siblings Leanne and Steve Ford ("Restored by the Fords"), Jasmine Roth ("Hidden Potential") and Lara Spencer ("Flea Market Flip") to make some updates to their old TV home.

There is no scheduled airdate yet, but according to a press release from HGTV, "A Very Brady Renovation" will air sometime in September 2019.

Knicks' youth movement officially here

David Fizdale has no problem rolling out the Knicks' youngest members on a regular basis.

The New York Knicks have officially brought in the kids.

Monday night's double-overtime loss to the Chicago Bulls is going to be one of many during the 2018-19 season, but new head coach David Fizdale gave the franchise a small glimpse into the future as he started the youngest lineup in franchise history.

Rolling out Frank Ntilikina (20 years old), Allonzo Trier (22), Damyean Dotson (24), Noah Vonleh (23) and Mitchell Robinson (20), New York's starting five had an average age of just 22 years, 100 days. The youngest Knicks starting lineup prior to this was in 2006, with an average age of 23 years, 73 days.

This was also without promising rookie Kevin Knox, the 19-year-old power forward who is expected to be a staple in the Knicks frontcourt alongside Kristaps Porzingis for years to come. He was limited to just five minutes in his first game back on Monday after missing two weeks due to an ankle injury.

There is no question that this is nothing more than a transition year for the Knicks, who are expected to look very different come next season thanks to two max-salary slots that will likely bring in some big-name, All-Star veterans to quickly transform the team into a contender in the Eastern Conference.

Yet it's clear that Fizdale is taking this season to assess all of his youthful assets that he has while continuing to keep an eye on the future.

Trier and Dotson played nearly a full game, each logging just under 42 minutes. The undrafted Trier posted 21 points, second on the Knicks only to Enes Kanter's monster 23-point, 24-rebound outing, while Dotson put up 18 points of his own.

The duo has been the most productive among the Knicks' youth movement. Dotson is third on the team with 13.5 points per game, while Trier is right behind him at 11.5, including a 17.7 ppg average over his last three games.

They're not going to win games, but they are showing all the things that Fizdale wants to see.

"Every night I'm just really proud of this group... I see great character in this team," he said. "The way that they bring it every single night, no matter who's on the court for us, no matter who's healthy, these guys really compete."

The Knicks are back in action tonight down in Georgia against the Atlanta Hawks (7:30 p.m. ET).

Yanks in on Corey Kluber, Carrasco, more

The Yankees might be able to take advantage of the Indians breaking things up as they target ace starter Corey Kluber. GETTY IMAGES

The New York Yankees' interest in top-tier pitchers was expected this offseason after the starting rotation played a large part in ending their season in the ALDS.

On Tuesday, the ball started rolling as Jon Heyman of Fancred reported that the Yankees are interested in Carlos Carrasco and ace Corey Kluber of the Cleveland Indians, along with James Paxton of the Seattle Mariners.

Paxton has developed into a reliable starter over the past two years. After posting an 18-15 record over his first four seasons in the majors, the Canadian is a combined 23-11. That included a 2017 season in which he posted a stellar 2.98 ERA.

The Indians are in the midst of what is believed to be a firesale of sorts despite making the postseason in each of the past three seasons. However, a World Series appearance in 2016 has been followed by two exits in the ALDS as the franchise waits for its first title since 1948.

Kluber is one of the biggest pieces the Indians are putting up for sale, as he is signed through 2019 with club options in 2020 and 2021.

The 32-year-old has been one of the most dominant pitchers in the American League, finishing in the top three in Cy Young voting in three of the past four years, including winning the award in 2014 and 2017. On Monday, Kluber was named a finalist once again, alongside Blake Snell and Justin Verlander, after going 20-7 with a 2.89 ERA and 222 strikeouts.

Over the past five years, he has averaged a 17-9 record with a 2.85 ERA and 246 strikeouts, numbers that would give the Yankees' rotation a true ace after Luis Severino failed to assume that role in 2018.

His teammate Carrasco has been an unsung hero of the Indians' rotation at times. Over the past three years, he's sported a 3.33 ERA while winning a combined 46 games.

The Yankees met with the Indians on Tuesday, per Heyman.

Giants not suspending Lauletta

Giants QB Kyle Lauletta. GETTY IMAGES

For New York Giants fans that were hoping to see a change at the quarterback position heading into Week 10, you'll have to wait a little bit longer.

Head coach Pat Shurmur reiterated on Tuesday afternoon that veteran Eli Manning will be the team's No. 1 man under center against the San Francisco 49ers on Monday night.

The 37-year-old has been unable to competently lead a broken Giants offense that is built upon a faulty offensive line that is one of the worst in the NFL. The immobile Manning has been sacked 31 times already this season and only the Arizona Cardinals have scored fewer points than the Giants this season in the NFC.

Those issues presented the notion that rookie Kyle Lauletta, drafted in the fourth round of Richmond, would be taking over for Manning at some point during the season.

Following the team's Week 8 loss to the Washington Redskins in which they scored fewer than 20 points for a fifth time this season, shouts for Lauletta to step in were at their loudest. He even had an opportunity to take valuable snaps with the first team on Tuesday as Manning was given a veteran day off.

There was just one problem: Lauletta got arrested.

The 22-year-old was taken in after a vehicular incident with Weehawken Police on Tuesday where he failed to yield to an officer and almost hit numerous vehicles. He then proceeded to fail to comply with police after he was pulled over by refusing to roll down his window or step out of the car.

That seemingly ended any hope of Lauletta seeing the field any time soon. However, Shurmur revealed on Tuesday that Lauletta will not be suspended by the team, "but there are internal consequences."

At 1-7, New York's season is already over as they prepare for another campaign in the basement of the NFC East. After their Monday night trip to San Francisco, the Giants have tough NFC matchups against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Philadelphia Eagles, and Chicago Bears.

Is Finding The Best Treatment For Your Knee Arthritis Pain Worth 30 Seconds To You?

What if… there was a way to finally get straight answers about the most cutting-edge medical treatments for knee arthritis available today…

Answers from REAL MEDICAL DOCTORS who are experts in this field…

Doctors that have already treated THOUSANDS of knee arthritis suffers…

Doctors who will tell you exactly what your best options are and what can realistically be expected… without making huge (and false) claims… just to sell a product or service… and then deliver junk that does little or nothing for your pain?

Well… now you can.

Here is how…

NYC Pain MD is a medical clinic with 2 locations in New York City that has medical doctors specially trained in some of the most advanced, cutting edge knee arthritis treatments available today.

And they have put together an information kit that details some of these advanced medical procedures that have already helped thousands.

Including… what you need to know about joint lubricating injections, platelet rich plasma (PRP), stem cell therapy... and more.

This free information kit contains a video and report that will also explain the two arthritis treatments paths you should know about and what "Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology" is and why it has already helped so many arthritis sufferers.

How To Get Your Information Kit…

All you have to do is go to painmdny.com/knee and click the button that says "Click here to get a free knee arthritis treatment info kit."

Then put your name and email address in the space provided and you will be emailed a video and PDF report detailing what treatment options could be the best for your arthritis pain and how we might be able to help you.

We will also send you a way to get a free screening to see if you qualify for one of the advanced medical treatments. It is 100% free with no further obligation.

Drug Companies Fear Release Of New $2 Sex Pill For Older Men

Men in clinical trial see huge boost in desire, strength of erections, and sexual activity without side effects.

NEW YORK - It's hard to believe that in America today an affordable pill that could improve the sex lives of millions of men is in danger of being yanked from the shelves. And it's just because big drug companies fear for their profits.

The pharmaceutical industry is desperately trying to stop shipments of the remarkable new "JackedUp" pill.Big Pharma is worried because men are reporting increased sex drive, stronger erections and more stamina - all without the side-effects and $40-per-pill price tag associated with drugs like Viagra. Clinical results show men feel these benefits within just a few weeks of taking JackedUp's active ingredient.

The pill, made for men over 50, was released early last month. Despite Big Pharma's efforts, sales have already exceeded expectations.

Exciting Benefits

There are very good reasons why sales are booming and drug companies want it gone. Apart from costing just two dollars per daily dose, the clinical results confirm JackedUp's active ingredient is very impressive. It greatly boosts a man's ability to get and keep erections. Stamina during sex also improves.

The product also has a unique ability to help men feel more passion, desire, and sex drive. These impressive benefits come from boosting testosterone levels by up to a whopping 193%. Doctors are astounded by its effects.

Why do drug companies want this pill stopped? Since the "JackedUp" pill is natural, drug companies can't patent it (like they did with Viagra) and make big profits. Plus, if you're over 50 and suffering from low sex drive, decreased stamina and inability to perform, low testosterone is the biggest factor. If you can safely boost your testosterone, you won't need their expensive pills. That's the very reason big business is trying to have it pulled from the shelves.

> "If you're over 50 and suffering from low sex drive, decreased stamina and inability to perform, low testosterone is the biggest factor. Drug companies do NOT want men to know about this afforable new pill..."

Strong Clinical Results Worry Big Pharma

Recent clinical trials on JackedUp's active ingredient have made the drug companies more desperate. The trial results were published in major medical journals, and doctors are now recommending JackedUp to patients.

The testing was done on men 40 – 65 years old, and the results were remarkable. The men who took the active ingredient in JackedUp reported major improvements in their sex lives. Their ability to get and keep erections went up by over 200%. Libido and sex drive surged. Even staying power and stamina during sex more than doubled!

Head of product development, Dave McNeill, said the big drug companies weren't worried at first. "They didn't care because the active ingredient can take a few weeks before many men really feel the benefits. But these awesome clinical trials really got their attention. They're learning A LOT of men will wait a few weeks if it means avoiding negative side effects and saving money."

How It Works

The "JackedUp" pill works by helping older men produce more testosterone. It doesn't force dangerous fake testosterone into your body like injections do. Instead, it works with your body to produce testosterone naturally. And the results have been extraordinary. It's like your body reboots itself to feel like it did in the prime of your life.

Initial Users Are Thrilled...And Worried

"JackedUp has been awesome for my sex drive and performance! I'm worried it may not be available in the future. The idea that it may be taken away just to secure some big drug company's profits is very frustrating."

- Rob H., 49 years old, Colorado Springs, CO

"My wife and I were both sexually vibrant until I had prostate cancer. After my surgery we tried everything my doctor recommended but nothing worked. Within a few weeks of taking JackedUp, everything has been functioning beautifully and we've been riding high ever since!"

- Ken S., 78 years old, Phoenix, AZ

Doctors Speak Out

Drug companies are also concerned that doctors are now recommending JackedUp. The active ingredient has strong clinical results and lacks the side effects seen in current drugs on the market. This makes it an easy option for doctors to suggest.

Big Pharma Worried: Older men are having better sex after taking the newly released $2 pill called JackedUp. Clinical trials show active ingredient triggers surge in desire, strength of erections, and sexual activity in older men.

Dr. Laguna-Bedia, a specialist in internal medicine says, "A lot of men think their lack of interest and inability to perform are simply parts of aging. This is just not true. JackedUp can help these men regain a healthy appetite for sex and the physical ability to perform."

"JackedUp works by boosting key male hormones without side effects. The benefits of these hormones to sexual health are well known, but they actually do more than that. Men also report more energy, less body fat and higher motivation," said Dr. G. Pereira, a renowned surgeon in Florida.

Dr. Jacob Moss notes, "I recommend JackedUp if you're struggling with getting and keeping erections or low libido. It's also a great option for men who want to last longer and have more control over when they orgasm."

Special Opportunity for Our Readers

Drug companies are fighting hard to get rid of this product. This is making inventory disappear fast. Thankfully, a special discounted supply has been reserved for Metro New York readers. But only for those who call within the next 48 hours.

This is the best opportunity to try JackedUp risk-free with their 100% results guarantee.

A Regional Order Hotline has been set up for local readers to call. This gives all men an equal chance to try JackedUp.

Starting at 6:00 am today the order hotline will be open for the next 48 hours. All you have to do is call TOLL FREE 1-888-973-4993 and the company will do the rest.

Due to the possibility of JackedUp being pulled from the shelf, phone lines are often busy. If you call and do not immediately get through, please be patient and call back. Current supplies of JackedUp are limited, and callers that don't get through to the order hotline within the next 48 hours will be forced to wait for more inventory to be produced. This can take as long as 6 weeks.

THESE STATEMENTS HAVE NOT BEEN EVALUATED BY THE FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION. THIS PRODUCT IS NOT INTENDED TO DIAGNOSE, TREAT, CURE OR PREVENT ANY DISEASE. ALL DOCTORS MENTIONED ARE REMUNERATED FOR THEIR SERVICES. ALL CLINICAL STUDIES ON JACKEDUP'S ACTIVE INGREDIENT WERE INDEPENDENTLY CONDUCTED AND WERE NOT SPONSORED BY THE MAKERS OF JACKEDUP.

Beauvillier's struggles opening door for others?

The struggling Beauvillier hasn't been able to produce much while youngsters wait in the minors.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Anthony Beauvillier (middle) might be hearing the footsteps of Josh Ho-Sang (left) and Michael Dal Colle (right) in the minors. GETTY IMAGES

It hasn't been the kind of start Anthony Beauvillier was looking for this year.

The New York Islanders left winger has been held to just one goal over his first 13 games of the 2018-19 season as Monday night's loss to the Montreal Canadiens marked the fifth consecutive pointless game.

Some pretty high expectations were placed on the shoulders of the 21-year-old after last season, in which he recorded seven goals and four assists in his final nine games of the season to cap off a 21-goal campaign.

His partnership with franchise center Mathew Barzal down the stretch prompted new head coach Barry Trotz to line Beauvillier alongside the reigning Calder Trophy winner, but the slow start has prompted Trotz to shuffle things around to try and get Beauvillier's game going.

Nothing has worked, even with Trotz reuniting Beauvillier with Barzal on the second line.

There have been chances for the Quebec native, especially against his hometown Canadiens. A redirection of a slap pass from Barzal nearly found its way into the back of the net before he was denied on a breakaway by Antti Niemi.

His lack of output, along with Barzal's (he has just one goal to go with 11 assists), hasn't been felt all too much as the Islanders are getting production from all corners of the depth chart. Along with the stellar goaltending of Thomas Greiss, it has played a large part in the team's surprising start, in which they sit atop the Metropolitan Division with 18 points through 14 games.

But should the team begin to foreshadow a nosedive and the offense slump, Beauvillier's standing on the team could be in jeopardy, even if it is just for an abbreviated period of time.

Within the Islanders' farm system at Bridgeport, a pair of wingers in Josh Ho-Sang (right wing) and Michael Dal Colle (left wing) is currently tearing it up.

Often the controversial figure, Ho-Sang was expected by many to be in the NHL full-time by now, at 22 years old. However, attitude issues have withheld him from making the jump.

Following comments made to the New York Post in which he claimed he wasn't given a proper chance to make the team in training camp, neither was he given the opportunity to prepare for life as a top six forward. In his first nine games of the season at Bridgeport, Ho-Sang spent most of his time on the third line.

But after being promoted to the top unit alongside right winger Dal Colle, the Islanders suddenly have two of the AHL's hottest scorers.

In his last three games, Ho-Sang has recorded a goal and seven assists (eight points) while Dal Colle has three goals and two assists to expand his team lead to 13 points in just 10 games played.

Should that kind of production continue down in Bridgeport, it would be difficult for the Islanders to not make a change should the offense become in need of a spark. Beauvillier would obviously be a prime candidate for replacement should his woes continue.

After Monday night's game, Trotz didn't necessarily deny the possibility of any lineup changes being made when asked, stating there were just some things that had to be "burned" from the loss to Montreal.

"We're trying to get points every night," Trotz said. "We just have to be better."

REPEATED-DOSE INTRAVENOUS KETAMINE
STUDY FOR PTSD

Have you experienced a life-threatening or traumatic event?
Since the trauma, have you:

- Had nightmares or flashbacks? Felt jumpy or anxious?
- Tried to avoid thinking or talking about it?
- Become less connected with people around you, or less interested in activities you used to enjoy?
- Blamed yourself for the trauma or what happened afterwards?

If so, you may be suffering from post-traumatic stress disorder or PTSD. The Mood and Anxiety Disorders Program at the Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai in New York City is conducting a study of repeated-dose ketamine.

Ketamine has been used for many years as an anesthetic medication, and at lower doses may help alleviate PTSD symptoms. You may be eligible to participate if you have PTSD and are 18-65 years old.

Participation involves a thorough psychiatric and medical screening. The study lasts for at least 4 weeks. You will be compensated for your time.
